

My company provides oxygen to patients who would like to travel. In the past, airline travel was difficult as the in flight oxygen was costly. The patient also had logistical problems between flights and traveling to and from the airport. The use of the compact Airsep concentrator would allow our oxygen patients freedom and mobility. I would ask that this device and others like it be approved by the FAA. Thank you.